Checkmate
Vacation Notice
Typewriteresque

An incredulous world has been watching developments in that scheduled chess championship match in Iceland which as yet hasn't come off.

First the American challenger, Bobby Fischer, refused to travel to the match scene because tournament officials wouldn't give him more money. Finally a London banker who likes chess sweetened the pot for Fischer.

Fischer arrived on the scene only to see the coattails of the Russian champ, Boris Spassky, flying out the back door. The Russian said he had been insulted by the American's holdout.

And finally, tournament officials and the press and television are at war because television rights have already been sold, restricting news coverage of the scheduled match.

On this last item I am as confused as you are—I simply can't imagine chess, an exquisite study in still life, being turned into entertainment on the picture tube.

I once had a harrowing experience with a chess player and it didn't endear the game to me. As a young man I was a pretty fair hand at checkers, regularly beating my second brother, the late Lindsley M. Washburn; but one day while in Pennsylvania on vacation I tied into him at checkers and I failed even to reach the king row in 12 consecutive games.

Our mother suggested, sagely: "Perhaps you don't know that since you've moved to Arkansas your brother has become chess champion of the Pennsylvania state house."

So my observations on the world championship match in Iceland are what you might call highly prejudiced.

Went over to Dodson & Maney Auto Service the other day to swap some fishing lies and was jolted by a sign on the locked door: "Sorry, closed until July 17."

Herbert Dodson and Bob Maney have got it made. When vacation-time rolls around they just close up shop and leave.

You can do that with a two-man operation. Lock the door and leave. The envious ones are the people who run restaurants, motels, and newspapers. Can you imagine the outcry if they were to shut down at vacation-time? With 20 employes The Star has to struggle all Summer with the vacation problem.

And yet the shop close-up system used by small businesses is the same plan used by the largest factories. Rather than string out vacations all Summer they suspend operations across the board and get all vacations over with at one time.

In yesterday's Daily Bread (Wednesday, July 5) you spotted a grotesque typographical error. I admit I wrote it that way: "Sending me Wall Street Journal clippings is about liking ship coal to Newcastle." Of course it should have read: "about like shipping coal to Newcastle."

Broadcasters suffer slips of the tongue. Editors have the same trouble hurrying a typewriter. I call it typewriteresque.

The proofreaders who make the initial corrections (I see only the final revise) ought to catch a bust like this. Years ago I asked a proofer about a similar bust and was told: "It didn't make sense to me—but I thought it might to the reader."

That's a dangerous assumption. Proof is always assumed to be wrong unless you can prove it correct. If text doesn't make sense, change it!

But who am I to complain? I checked the final revise proof and missed the bust. It's a treacherous business reading proof on your own writing—you know what's coming up, and assume correct wording when it's not actually there.

Discussing the case

Election case investigation underway here

An investigation into alleged irregularities connected with the opening of a ballot box following the May 30 Democratic preferential primary is underway here, according to Prosecuting Attorney Dub Arnold.

The Star has learned that the night of the May 30 election, the absentee box was allegedly opened to check the votes cast in a specific race—the county committeeman contest in the Spring Hill Township between incumbent Garland Kidd and W. E. Tarpley. Tarpley won the election by a single vote.

The announcement of the investigation was preceded by a brief meeting yesterday afternoon at the county courthouse. Arnold, John Robert Graves, deputy prosecuting attorney, County Sheriff Henry Sinyard, Donal Parker, chairman of the Hempstead County Democratic Central Committee and Leo Ray of Hope met for about 45 minutes in the judge's chambers on the third floor of the courthouse.

A reporter for the Star requested entrance to the meeting, but the request was politely refused by Arnold. Arnold likened the meeting to a grand jury investigation and said the testimony would be taken.

Following the meeting, Arnold said that felony charges would be filed today in connection with the case. However, in a telephone conversation this morning, Arnold stated that he had decided to postpone filing charges, at least temporarily. He is considering petitioning Circuit Court Judge John Goodson of Texarkana to call a grand jury investigation.

Arnold told the Star: "Monday I will either file charges in the matter or petition for a grand jury investigation."

Arnold, following yesterday's meeting, wrote out the information for the issuing of a warrant in the case. However, the information was never filed with the county sheriff's office.

A grand jury is a rarity in most sections of the state, and requires the services of 16 persons; 12 votes are needed for an indictment.

Under investigation is Ark. Stat. 3-1105 which states: "No person shall falsely change, alter or obliterate the poll books of any election, or break any seals upon any ballot box, voting machine or stub box, except as authorized by law."

The maximum penalty for the offense is five years in jail and a $5,000 fine.

Rare session of court sought

WASHINGTON (AP) — Democratic party forces are seeking a rare special session of the Supreme Court to determine which presidential candidate gets the California delegates George McGovern thought he had locked up.

The appeals to be filed today would go first to Chief Justice Warren E. Burger who would decide whether to call the justices back from vacation.

The arguments revolve around constitutional guarantees of due process and the extent to which federal courts may inject themselves into partisan political processes.

Two groups are appealing a U.S. Court of Appeals decision Wednesday which reversed the party's Credentials Committee in the California case, but upheld it in the Illinois case.

First is the party hierarchy which defends the committee as the proper body for deciding such matters and wants the high court to declare the selection of convention delegates off-limits to the federal courts.

On the other hand, forces loyal to Chicago Mayor Richard J. Daley argue that the courts should upset the committee once more and restore convention seats to Daley and 58 allies.

The Court of Appeals restored to McGovern the full 271-vote California reversing the committee's vote to take more than half the number from him and apportion them to other primary candidates, chiefly Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey.

The court suspended the effect of its rulings until 2 p.m. today to give the high court time to act if it wishes. The Supreme Court has held only three special sessions in its history.

"We feel this case is as compelling and more compelling" than those which prompted the other sessions, said Democratic National Committee counsel Joseph A. Califano in Miami Beach. "The courts should not get involved in selecting delegates."

McGovern forces announced Wednesday afternoon that the appeals-court action gave their candidate more than the 1,509 delegate votes needed for nomination.

The Associated Press delegate count, which does not list officially uncommitted delegates who are leaning toward a candidate, showed McGovern with 1,436.65 votes.

But Humphrey was in no mood to concede. He noted that the Supreme Court had not yet spoken, and argued further that the party itself would be the ultimate judge.

Humphrey conceded that it would be "quite a hassle" if the convention ignores the court, but said he felt it has the right to do so.

The appeals court based its intervention on the conclusion that the party had ignored its own rules to the point where constitutional guarantees due process were violated. California law awarded all the delegates to the winner.

The 2-1 decision overturned a U.S. District Court which ruled Monday that the judiciary has no jurisdiction in partisan processes unless a clear constitutional priinciple is involved. The lower court found no constitutional question in that case.

Guantanamo withdrawal demanded

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Union today demanded the "unconditional withdrawal" of the U.S. naval base at Guantanamo Bay and pledged to continue supplying massive economic and military aid to Fidel Castro's Communist regime.

The Kremlin demand was made in a 4,000-word joint Soviet-Cuban communique published today as Castro left the Soviet Union for home after an 11-day visit.

"The Soviet leaders have once again stated that the Soviet Union resolutely condemns the economic and political blockade of Cuba conducted by the United States," the communique declared.

There must be an "unconditional withdrawal of the American Guantanamo naval base, which, contrary to the sovereign will of the Cuban people, exists on Cuban territory," it added.

Communist sources said Castro would make a short stopover in Morocco today en route to Havana.

Man, 84, attempts to cross tracks, feet amputated

An 84-year-old Hope man suffered double amputation of his feet about 4 p.m. yesterday when he was run over by a Missouri-Pacific freight train, according to the Hope Police Department.

Dewitt Stephens of 322 West Ave. A was attempting to crawl under the train, which had stopped temporarily to repair air lines, when the accident occurred, the police said.

Stephens was taken to St. Michael's Hospital in Texarkana by the Hempstead County Ambulance service. He is in the intensive care unit, and his condition is listed as fair, according to a hospital spokesman.

According to investigating officers James Purtle and Ronald Stovall, the train engineer, Woody L. Taylor, said he did not see Stephens until he (Taylor) was flagged down by a brakeman.

14 die in Vietnam in week's action

SAIGON (AP) — Fourteen Americans were reported killed in the Indochina war last week and four more were listed as missing in action, the U.S. Command reported today.

U.S. wounded in action last week were put at 23.

A South Vietnamese communique reported 2,765 enemy killed last week and listed government losses as 523 men killed and 2,199 wounded.

Seven Americans were reported dead "not as a result of hostile action," a category that can include deaths in combat situations not directly caused by the enemy — as when a helicopter goes down from mechanical malfunction during a battle.

U.S. authorities have acknowledged more than 60 American fliers missing in North Vietnam since the stepped-up bombing campaign began April 6. Hanoi claims to have captured many of them.

Surprise negotiations for VN peace

LONDON (AP) — Western diplomats have been speculating on chances that Russia and China may separately be urging North Vietnam toward a peace settlement ever since President Nikolai V. Podgorny visited Hanoi and Henry A. Kissinger visited Peking last month.

But these officials representing countries with missions in Moscow, Peking and Hanoi, reported today they have seen absolutely no evidence to suggest that the Russians or Chinese in fact are exercising any effective pressures on North Vietnam.

In the one sector where Moscow and Peking could reinforce any advice in favor of a settlement—in the supply of arms and other military aid—there has been no sign of a cutoff of aid.

And these Western authorities said they doubt very much if the competing Russians and Chinese would expose themselves to charges of betraying Hanoi by seeming to turn on them so soon before the resumption of the Paris peace talks next week.

Spokesmen for the Soviet and Chinese embassies here declined formal comment on a report that their governments have been pressing Hanoi to end the war soon.

A source close to the Chinese embassy said: "No member of the Chinese mission could conceivably discuss Peking's dealings with Hanoi in this way."

During his mission to Moscow, President Nixon devoted hours of his time to discussing with Soviet leaders ways of ending the Vietnam war. It became everyone's secret that he sought Soviet help toward that goal.

In the wake of Nixon's visit, President Podgorny journeyed to Hanoi where, Western diplomats said, he got a lukewarm reception.

Western authorities still are unsure if this was due to Hanoi's resentment against the Russians for permitting the summit talks to take place at a time when U.S. bombing was going on and U.S. mining of North Vietnamese ports was taking place. That could have been a factor. Another factor could have been Hanoi's hostility to the advice Podgorny was offering.

Budget plan attack led by Laird

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of Defense Melvin R. Laird said today Sen. George McGovern's proposal to slash defense spending by $30 billion "would signal to the world a drastic decline in America's will and ability to contribute to international stability."

Leading the Nixon administration attack against the Democratic presidential nomination front-runner on the eve of the Miami Beach convention, Laird again characterized McGovern's defense program as "tantamount to a white flag of surrender."

"The so-called white flag budget substitutes a philosophy of give-away now, beg later, for a philosophy of strength and willingness to negotiate" as followed by the Nixon administration, Laird said at a news conference in which he released two documents containing the Pentagon's analysis of McGovern's proposals.

The Defense chief first referred to McGovern's plan as representing the white flag of surrender in a June 5 appearance before Sen. William Proxmire's foreign operations subcommittee and in response to Proxmire's request agreed to present a detailed analysis backing up his charge.

Laird told newsmen that he had intended to wait until after the Democratic convention before releasing the analysis but decided to go ahead after Proxmire accused him of breaking a promise to document his attacks against McGovern.

In his proposal to trim defense spending, McGovern has proposed a defense budget of $54.8 billion by fiscal 1975, some $32.5 billion less than the current Nixon budget would cost three years hence.

Blevins man appointed to hospital board

Choate was appointed to the seven-year term by County Judge Finis Odom. Choate replaces Cecil Cox of Fulton, whose term expired.

Challenge to state delegates expected

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — State Rep. Frank B. Henslee of Pine Bluff said Wednesday a lawsuit challenging the legality of the Arkansas delegation to the Democratic National Convention will be filed today.

Henslee said he would be one of a group of plaintiffs in the case. The group has retained Art Givens Jr. of Little Rock as its attorney.

Givens said the suit would contend that the election process of the State Convention was unconstitutional because of guidelines of the national Democratic party that required the delegation to include women, blacks and young persons "in reasonable relationship" to the state's population.

These guidelines abridged the right of the 936 delegates to the State Convention to nominate and vote freely for their choice for delegates, Givens said. He said they were required to allot certain positions for women, blacks and persons under 30.

Arkansas' delegation, elected at a Democratic party State Convention June 24, consists of 15 men and 12 women, including five blacks and five persons under 30.

All the delegates are committed to Rep. Wilbur D. Mills until he releases them. Henslee is a suppoorter of Gov. George Wallace of Alabama.

Object is improved telephone service

New requirements recommended by PSC

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — The state Public Service Commission staff recommended several new requirements Wednesday that it said should be imposed on telephone companies in the state to improve service.

Statements were made at a PSC hearing to consider the promulgation of revised standards to improve telephone service in the state.

The PSC had instructed all of the 37 telephone companies that do business in Arkansas to notify their customers of the hearing and to tell the customers that they could submit statements to the PSC. The PSC received 686 responses from customers, all of them complaints except 16, which said that telephone service was good.

PSC Chairman Pat Moran said the primary purpose of the hearing was to consider general revisions in the telephone service regulations and he suggested that persons with specific complaints about their own telephone service lodge the complaints with the PSC complaints division.

Wednesday's hearing was recessed at 4:30 p.m. to a date to be announced later.

With one exception, all of the testimony Wednesday was by PSC staff members or telephone company officials.

Mayor Leonard McDougal of Kensett, which is served by Four States Telephone Co., testified concerning a large number of complaints from Kensett residents about poor services especially with regard to eight-party lines.

One of the PSC staff recommendations was elimination of all party-line service of more than four parties on a line.

Telephone company representatives took issue with some of the staff's recommendations. Officials of Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. and Allied Telephone Co. testified that their companies favored the elimination of eight-party service, and had made progress toward that goal, but would need about seven years to finish the job.

Commissioner Robert C. Downie said it would be "implausible" to recommend an immmediate elimination of all eight-party service. He said it was not likely the PSC would issue an order it could not enforce.

— Require all telephone utilities to provide full selective ringing. Full selective ringing means that a telephone on a party line will ring only when that number is called. Without full selective ringing, a person on a party line will hear his telephone ring when the call is for someone else.

— Elimination of all conversation timers, which are devices that cut off phone calls after a specified period of time. The staff said there might be some justification for timers on eight-party lines, but not on lines serving four parties or fewer.

— Require each telephone company to provide direct-distance dialing service to all customers.

— Raise from 95 per cent to 97½ per cent the number of calls that will receive a dial tone within three seconds.

— Require that interruptions of telephone service be repaired within 24 hours, including Sundays and holidays. The present PSC regulations exclude Sundays and holidays from the requirement that repairs be made within 24 hours.

— Refunds for outages exceeding 24 hours should be initiated automatically by the telephone companies. Presently, such refunds are made at the customer's request.

BOND IS SET

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Bond of $5,000 was set Wednesday for Carroll W. Wells, 38, of Little Rock who was arrested earlier in the day by the FBI on charges of possession of stolen property.

Wells posted bond and was released, officials said.

Herbert E. Hoxie, special agent in charge of the Little Rock office of the FBI, said Wells was arrested in North Little Rock in connection with the Nov. 10, 1971, robbery of a Wichita, Kan., residence.

Hoxie said an intruder allegedly awakened the Wichita residents in their bedroom at gunpoint, tied them up and departed after taking a $25,000 diamond ring and other property.

Protestants plan to barricade sector

Concession is demanded

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP) — Militant Protestants today were demanding another concession from the British government in exchange for two weeks of cooperation in the cease-fire in Northern Ireland.

The paramilitary Ulster Defense Association said it would barricade another Protestant section this weekend but after that would "grant 14 days of peace and grace" to allow British forces "to deal with the deteriorating position."

Britain's administrator for Northern Ireland, William Whitelaw, had warned that no more such no-go areas would be tolerated. The UDA in effect was telling him he had to back down or face the possibility of an armed challenge to the army.

The UDA, which claims it can bring thousands of armed fighters into the streets, also said that during their two-week "peace and grace" period, their men would be "standing in full strength to protect any area" during the processions July 12 of the Protestant Orange Order.

This was a warning to both the British and the Roman Catholics not to interfere with the parades, which the Catholic minority regards as a provocative demonstration of Protestant domination in Northern Ireland. Both Protestant and Catholic marches have frequently touched off communal fighting in the past three years of violence.

The UDA last weekend barricaded five Protestant areas to protest Whitelaw's refusal to interfere with Catholic-only enclaves policed by gunmen of the Irish Republican Army. Later the UDA let the army take over the barricades in one sector but maintained unarmed patrols behind them.

While the IRA generally continued to observe the cease-fire that the guerrilla command declared last week, a wave of sectarian attacks continued.

Wednesday night a man was shot in the thighs in a Catholic district of Belfast and another was shot in the shoulder in another Catholic section.

A volley also was fired at an army patrol, but nobody was hit, and the troops didn't return the fire.

Eight men were murdered over the weekend — two Protestants, five Catholics and a young Jehovah's Witness visiting from England.

Two more Protestant brothers, 19 and 20 years old, were slain Wednesday, and their boddirectories left in a country lane. There were reports that the youths had Catholic friends and one of them had a Catholic girl friend.

'Wallace will support me': HHH

WAVERLY, Minn. (AP) — Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey says he believes Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace would support him for president if he is the Democratic nominee.

"He could be an active spokesman for some of us," Humphrey said Wednesday. "I believe he could and would give me support."

Humphrey also said he thinks Wallace would support Sen. Henry M. Jackson of Washington if Jackson is the nominee, and possibly Sen. Edmund S. Muskie of Maine, but not Sen. George McGovern of South Dakota.

Humphrey, who lately has adopted a conciliatry stance toward Wallace on issues other than civil rights, said he believes that if the Democratic National Convention fails to choose a nomiee on the first or second ballot, up to 75 per cent of Wallace's delegates would support Humphrey.

Humphrey once said flatly he couldn't accept Wallace as a vice presidential running mate, but dropped that stance after losing the California primary to McGovern.

He has encouraged fellow Democrats to make Wallace welcome at the convention, which begins Monday in Miami Beach, Fla.

Humphrey was interviewed Wednesday at his lakeside home here, where he is resting before flying to Miami on Friday.

"I think that Wallace is going to stay in the party," Humphrey said. "I've said that from the beginning and everything I've said or done has been directed toward that objective because I believe that if he, even in his present physical condition, were to bolt the party, it would be very injurious to us."

If McGovern is the nominee, Humphrey said, "the question is would Wallace come out for Nixon. After my visit with him, I think it's less likely."

Humphrey visited Wallace last week in the Maryland hospital where Wallace is recuperating from gunshot wounds suffered several weeks ago at a campaign rally.

During the interview, Humphrey said he will stay in the race for the nomination even if it means a walkout by McGovern supporters.

Humphrey said he thinks McGovern has hurt his chances for the nomination by threatening to run as an independent candidate if the Democrats deny him the nomination in a way he feels is unfair.

Humphrey also said he doesn't take that threat entirely seriously. "Maybe the wish is father of the thought, but I tend to discount it," Humphrey said.

He added that such a threat won't influence his decision to stay in the race. "I surely would not submit to political blackmail," he said.

McGovern's plan 'off again'

By GREGG HERRINGTON
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — George McGovern's off-again, on-again welfare reform plan is off again.

A spokesman said Wednesday McGovern has decided to wait until after the Democratic National Convention next week to unveil the second version of his plan to rewrite the nation's welfare laws. By that time, he hopes to be the Democratic nominee for president.

This makes at least the third time McGovern has postponed announcement of his revised plan.

"We didn't think thre was any sense in further cluttering up the convention," the spokesman said. "There'll be enough going on to distract people as it is."

But the new delay is also expected to lead to some criticism from McGovern's opponents who might have anticipated using it as ammunition against his nomination.

McGovern's original plan, based on an annual guaranteed income in the $1,000-per-person range, was sharply attacked by Sen. Hubert Humphrey of Minnesota during the campairn for the June 6 California primary election.

Humphrey and other critics charged it would cost more than McGovern said it would and questioned whether new federal revenue from closing tax loopholes would be as high as McGovern has predicted.

McGovern has said repeatedly his welfare plan is impossible without the new tax laws aimed at increasing revenue by closing loopholes.

After the California primary, McGovern announced the plan was being revised. He met at his home June 25 with Yale economist James Tobin, described by McGovern aides as chief author of the program, and at least a half-dozen other members of McGovern's economic brain trust to work on details of the revision.

The following day, in Oklahoma City, McGovern leaked bits and pieces of the revisions, and said "the old plan was sound but the new plan will be easier to explain." The new plan, McGovern said, would be released late that week.

It wasn't.

Nor was it released early this week as was subsequently promised. Now McGovern has set the unveiling back until after the nomination.

Wallace plans to attend convention

SILVER SPRING, Md. (AP) — George C. Wallace, partially paralyzed but still seeking the presidency, ends a 53-day hospital stay Friday and flies to the Democratic National Convention where he will disclose his plans for the future.

Aides say the Alabama governor will make an important political announcement on his arrival in Miami Beach.

But before that announcement, Wallace will stop briefly in Montgomery, Ala. Lt. Gov. Jere Beasley has been acting governor since June 4. Wallace was shot while campaign in Laurel, Md., on May 15.

Wallace has been fitted with leg braces and a 32-inch-high walking bar so he can swing his legs along without the aid of another person.

He lifts 50-pound weights daily and is doing scores of pushups from his wheelchair with the aid of therapy bars He has lost weight but does not appear gaunt.

Specially built ramps have been installed at the Miami Beach convention hall to accommodate Wallace's walking bar and wheelchair.

The governor, who trails Sens. George McGovern and Hubert H. Humphrey in the Democratic delegate count, aims to influence the party position on such issues as busing and tax reform.

Aides have given no indication what Wallace will say on arrival at the convention. On one of three occasions on which he left the hospital, to dine with his wife in a hotel Tuesday night, Wallace conferred with four supporters on the Democratic Credentials Committee.

Meanwhile, NBC announced that Wallace has withdrawn from a special program of "Meet the Press." The program will go on as scheduled Sunday with the five other rivals for the Democratic presidential nomination.

There was no explanation from the Wallace camp or from NBC as to why the governor withdrew.

A refreshing taste of the past.

DINNER GUESTS

On Thursday evening, June 29, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Henley, Mr. and Mrs. Mack McLarty and Mr. and Mrs. Yancey Reynolds were dinner guests of the Rev. and Mrs. William Risinger. Each couple brought their specialty as a course of the meal resulting in a festive menu.

Coming, Going

Dr. Emmett Thompson and David Guerin of Hope and Dr. and Mrs. John Nix and family of Texarkana spent the 4th of July in Conway with Dr. and Mrs. Lloyd Guerin.

Dr. and Mrs. Phillip Rowe and Mark, Honduras, Central America, and Mr. and Mrs. Roy Rowe and children, West Memphis are visiting the Lacie Rowe family.

Yellow-white theme used

Mr. and Mrs. Lile Easterling were hosts at a rehearsal dinner honoring their son, Freddie Lile, and his fiancee, Miss Julia Louise Ables, at the El Chico Restaurant in Texarkana, Texas, on June 28. Miss Ables' chosen colors, yellow and white, were used with an arrangement of daisies as the focal point.

Cards marked the places for 20 guests that included special guests, Mr. and Mrs. Phil Ables, parents of the bride-elect. The couple chose that time to present gifts to their attendants.

Optimist Club meets

Don Abott, administrator of the Hempstead County Memorial Hospital, was guest speaker at the weekly meeting of the Hope Optimist Club.

The membership charter date with the International Optimist Club is scheduled for July 11.

Nominations have been made for officers and committee members to be voted on July 11.

All persons interested are urged to attend the next meeting at the Town and Country, July 6, at 6:15 a.m. Harold Alexander is acting chairman. This will be the last week to become a charter member.

Woman director named to N.Y. Stock Exchange

By CAROLE MARTIN
AP Business Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — The first woman director of the New York Stock Exchange is an economist with a keen interest in directing the nation's resources toward the solution of social problems.

Dr. Juanita M. Kreps, professor of economics at Duke University, was one of 10 new directors elected Wednesday to represent the public interest on an expanded board which will set policy for the world's largest securities exchange.

In her professional work, she has devoted particular interest to consumer issues, the status of working women and disadvantaged groups and the questions of family finance.

"All these areas are related directly or indirectly to the functioning of the New York Stock Exchange," she said in a recent interview. "The market affects not only the 32.5 million people who own stock directly but also more than 100 million who are indirect owners through pension funds, life insurance policies and other forms of managed savings."

But Dr. Kreps said that there are certain groups who do not or have not shared in the country's economic growth — the aged, for example.

A vice president of the National Council on the Aging, Dr. Kreps has written extensively on the problems of the older poor and retired persons.

The daughter of a coal mine operator, Dr. Kreps received her master's and doctoral degrees from Duke after graduating from Berea College in eastern Kentucky, not far from Harlan County where she was born.

HELEN BOTTEL

If the Blue Collar Fits

Helen and Sue:

Dad wants me to finish college mainly because he didn't. He did all right without a degree. He has his own machine shop and garage but still thinks of himself as a "laborer" and doesn't want this for me.

I tried college, but spent most of my time in the auto mechanics shop. I'm good with my hands—Iought to be, as I've worked with Pop ever since I could lift a wrench.

What I want is to come into the business with him and help him expand it. He thinks I'm just saying that to make him feel good: how could any guy not want to go to college if he got a chance? Hell, he likes what He's doing, and "labor" earns him more per year than I could make as a college professor! I like what he's doing too.

How do you get through to your father that you want to follow in his footsteps when he wants you to be an executive or professional man?—Not on The Brain Train

Dear NOT:

Your father may be pushing college for two reasons: 1. To provide you choices—just in case you "outgrow" the family business, and 2. The old upward mobility thing: from mechanic's son to white collar executive...what parent doesn't want for his child what he could never have for himself?

Why not take a year away from college, work in the machine shop with him, and then make your deceision? By that time you'll either have made it in a partnership or have learned that Pop wasn't just blowin' into an exhaust pipe.—Helen

P.S. True, college isn't for everyone, but business courses might help if you're going to expand the company.—H.

N.O.T.B.T:

It's no good, going to college just for status. Tell your father you'll get a better education working with Him at something you enjoy.

Here's an argument you might use on him:

Research shows that only one of every four college students gets a degree. There are twice as many suicides among college students as among the general population—and they have 50 per cent more emotional and mental problems. College grades have little or no bearing on later success, and presently a lot of teachers and engineers with Master's Degrees can't find jobs. In fact, blue collar workers are doing better than the white collars.

If a student invested wisely the costs of four years in college, he might have larger life earnings than if he attended.

Judging from all this, a student at Michigan State University concluded, "By attending college, a young person has a better chance of: becoming a dropout, going crazy, killing himself, learning irrelevant things, and losing money."—SUE

P.S. College is great for some, a waste for others, and it should be the individual's choice, not his parents'!—SUE

Dear Rap:

I chewed my fingernails until I started chewing my pencils instead. That helped my nails grow, but now I'm called "Pencil Eater," and even the teachers tease me so much I dread to go back to school this September. I'm very shy. Can you suggest a habit that isn't so noticeable?—If I switch to chewing food I'll get fat.—GOTTA CHANGE

Dear GOTTA:

Exchanging one habit for another doesn't cure the nerves that cause the habit. Try to make new friends this summer and keep busy at things you truly enjoy. When you conquer some of your shyness (you can, if you remember others feel self-conscious, too) you may also lose the urge to chew.—Helen and Sue

Skipped beat may be normal

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

Dear Dr. Lamb — Can smoking cigarettes cause one's heart to skip a beat or feel like it stops and starts real quick and hard. It sometimes feels like a nerve quivering. The same feeling as when a nerve in your arm or leg jumps, only in your chest over your heart. It seems a lot harder and sometimes hot flashes and a sweat occur after this skipping occurs. The feeling is really hard to explain. Also, can smoking cause hard breathing?

I have had chest X rays, electrocardiagrams and blood work, but they can't find out what is causing this so the specialist I saw said it must be my nerves and smoking. I smoke a pack a day, sometimes more. I have tried to stop smoking but failed. I have been smoking for about seven years. I am 21 years old and the doctors say my heart is perfect. It really scares me when this skipping takes place. It doesn't always happen every day, yet sometimes it can happen a couple of times a day.

Dear Reader—You are describing what many people call skipped beats of the heart and which are usually early contractions of the heart. As long as the heart beats right on time, a person is not apt to notice the heart beat, but if you have one beat early, there is a long pause that allows the heart to fill with more blood than usual. When all of this blood is pumped out with the next beat, it gives you the jarring feeling that you are complaining about. Very often people who complain of this problem do not have any evidence of heart disease. In fact, as I have mentioned before in this column, I saw a lot of apparently healthy pilots and even some astronauts who had these early beats. When they are mild and not frequent they won't be noticed.

I do know that they can cause severe symptoms and make a person feel extremely uncomfortable, even though they may not be life-threatening or indication of a serious problem with the health.

Some of these are made worse by anxiety. The hot flashes and the sweating and the changes in the heart beat that you describe all suggest that you may have a problem with anxiety. The reason for this, of course, is not apparent in your letter, but it can cause these kinds of complaints. Anxiety is usually associated with fear of some impending event or fear that something is going to happen.

Smoking cigarettes aggravates anxiety and can cause the heart to be more irritable and cause the symptoms that you have. So can excess coffee and indigestion. You should stop smoking, stop coffee (you can substitute one of the caffeine-free products if you wish), and start a good general exercise program. I have seen a lot of people overcome this problem by gradually increasing their exercise capability.

Ask your doctor to check your thyroid function. If you continue to have these problems, despite stopping tobacco and coffee and starting a moderate exercise program, you should see a psychiatrist and see if he can help you with anxiety-provoking situations in your life that may be aggravating your problem.

Huddleston's are honored at party

About 200 attended a farewell party for the Fielding Huddleston family at the Community Inn in Naples, Tex., June 30 with the Randy Moore family of Omaha, Tex., as hosts. Both Mr. and Mrs. Huddleston are natives of Hope.

Coach Huddleston has been at Paul Pewitt High School (located between Omaha and Naples, Tex.) for 16 years, and the family is moving to Longview, Tex., where Huddleston will coach at Hallsville High School. He was presented a watch as a parting gift, and the family was given an engraved silver tray.

Among the guests were Mrs. Jewel Moore, Sr., Mr. and Mrs. Jewel Moore, Jr., all of Hope; Mr. and Mrs. Kennie McKee, Mr. and Mrs. Ray Burton and Brad, all of Houston.

Phillies choose All-Star president

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The Philadelphia Phillies were knocking around the locker room on Independence Day, waiting to engage the San Francisco Giants, when a reporter walked in and asked them what they thought of President Nixon's all-star baseball team.

The Phillies, like everyone else, had read Nixon's personal album of stars, which was obtained by the Associated Press and published in many Sunday newspapers. The president had prepared the list in response to a newsmen who had asked him to name his favorite baseball players.

Sportswriter Stan Hochman of the Philadelphia Daily News got the idea that if presidents can choose the greatest baseball players, baseball players can name the all-star presidents. So Hochman raised the issue with the Phillies.

Once they were asked—on the Fourth of July—to compile an on-the-spot pantheon of presidential standouts, the Phillies replied with the spirit of the day and the enthusiasm of athletes.

"Who's on the $1,000 bill? asked Dick Selma, a pitcher.

"George Washington," was Jim Nash's choice. "He's the only guy whose picture my wife allows in my billfold."

"Zachary Taylor," snickered second baseman Denny Doyle. "Why? Because nobody else probably thought of him."

"I've been in the game 15 years and nobody's ever asked me that question," mused Deron Johnson, "I've got to go with Nixon. He's getting us out of Vietnam."

Catcher Mike Ryan also chose the current starter. Ryan explained: "I just pick him because he's always being second-guessed, just like a catcher."

"Harry Truman," said Tommy Hutton, utility fielder. "He'd be a scrapper. He'd do anything to win. Besides, anybody who can live as long as he had, has got to be tough."

Bill Robinson and Barry Lersch both chose Abraham Lincoln, Robinson, who is black, associated Lincoln with John F. Kennedy; he said both had helped blacks make strides toward equality. Lersch admired Lincoln "because he had long hair and a beard."

"JFK," said reflective shortstop Larry Bowa. "Because while you hear a lot of people saying bad things about Nixon I've never heard anyone say bad things about JFK. I think he had the respect of all the people."

At this point in the selection, Hutton changed his choice of all-star.

"Taft," said the utilty man. "He could hit the long ball. What was he 300 pounds?"

All-Star team to be announced

Friday night, July 7, has been designated as Sponsor Appreciation and Awards night for the Babe Ruth League Teams at Legion Field.

At this time recognition will be made of the Babe Ruth Team sponsors. They will be presented a Babe Ruth baseball plaque in appreciation of their sponsorship of these teams.

Certificates will be presented to all players who are completing their Babe Ruth League egilibility. Louisville Slugger batting certificates will be given to the two leading hitters from each team.

The announcement of the All-Star team selections will highlight the event. There will be a 13-14 year old team selected along with a 14-15 year old team. These two teams will represent Hope in the District 3 Babe Ruth tournament that will be held in Hope beginning July 14 and continuing through July 22.

The presentation of these awards will follow the game between Merchants and Blevins.

Signs contracts with Browns

CLEVELAND (AP) — Linebacker John Garlington and guard John Demarie have signed contracts with the Cleveland Browns for the 1972 National Football League season it was announced Wednesday night.

Stan Smith topples Kodes at Wimbledon

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) — Top-seeded Stan Smith of Pasadena, Calif., came from behind to beat Jan Kodes of Czechoslovakia 3-6, 6-4, 7-1, 7-5 today in the first of the men's semifinal matches of the Wimbledon Tennis Tournament.

The second match, before a capacity crowd of 15,000 on the grassy center court, pitted Ilie Nastase of Romania against Manuel Orantes of Spain.

The 26-year-old Smith from Pasadena, Calif., seems to have reached his peak at the right moment.

After struggling early in the tourney on Wimbledon's lush grass, he had a convincing 6-3, 6-1, 6-3 victory over Alex Metreveli of the Soviet Union in the quarter-finals.

Nastase, the No. 2 seed, Kodes and Orantes all are clay court performers. But they played throughout the winter on indoor wood surfaces—which are as fast as Wimbledon's grass and have sharpened their game to such an extent that they are making the strongest European challenge here in years.

On Wednesday, Billie Jean King of Long Beach, Calif., and Evonne Goolagong, the defending champion from Australia, reached the women's final.

"This is my seventh Wimbledon final" said Mrs. King after beating Rosemary Casals of San Francisco, 6-2, 6-4.

"It's a nice feeling because I've been disappointed with my play the last three or four years."

Miss Goolagong had a tough 90-minute semifinal against 17-year-old Chris Evert of Fort Lauderdale, Fla.

Little Chris, on her first visit to the Wimbledon center court, took the first set 6-4 and raced to a 3-0 lead in the second.

But the 20-year-old Australian rallied for a 4-6, 6-3, 6-4 victory.

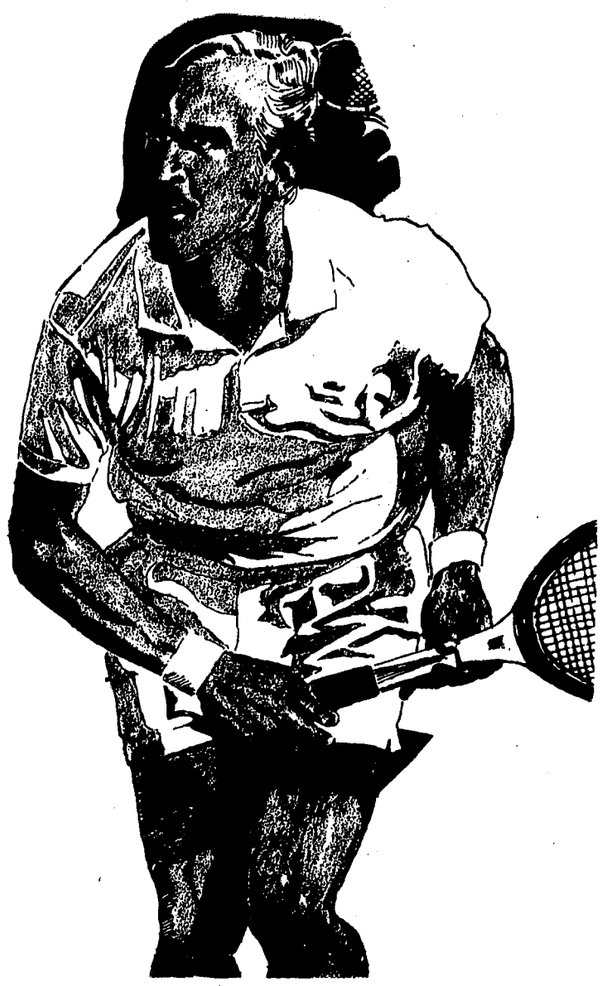

For the first time, Evonne was given tactical advice by Vic Edwards, her coach and legal guardian. He told her to get in at the net and cut short her backhands.

"I usually leave it to Evonne herself to decide how to play a match," Edwards said.

"But this time I was able to help, because I know the weaknesses of players who use a double grip for their backhand. I trained Jan Lehane, who used the same backhand grip as Chris.

"I know the weaknesses that have to be ironed out of their game, and some weaknesses that cannot be cured. I told Evonne how to capitalize on them.

"But Chris is a great player and a thoroughly nice kid. We shall see a lot more of her in the years to come."

Red Sox win five in a row

By HAL BOCK

Lee Stange, who spent four American League seasons pitching for the Boston Red Sox in cozy Fenway Park with the friendliest left field wall in all of baseball, laughed out loud.

Stange, now the Red Sox' pitching coach, was watching newsmen and club officials scurry through record books after Marty Pattin's five-hitter beat Minnesota 2-0 Wednesday night and gave Boston hurlers five straight complete games.

"Forget about looking it up," advised Stange, who has seen his share of pitchers eaten alive by the close-in left field wall they call the Green Monster at Fenway. "It probably never happened before. Not in this ball park anyway."

The Red Sox have forgotten about their bullpen since last Saturday. Since then, they've started five different pitchers and gotten five straight complete game victories which is about as good as a pitching staff can do.

Pattin's victory was the second consecutive shutout in the string, following Lynn McGlothen's three-hitter against the Twins Tuesday. The other route-going efforts in the string belong to Ray Culp, John Curtis and Luis Tiant.

Elsewhere in the American League Wednesday, Baltimore blanked Chicago 1-0, Kansas City trimmed Detroit 8-2, New York downed Oakland 4-1 and California nipped Milwaukee 1-0. Texas at Cleveland was postponed by rain.

In the National League, Los Angeles rapped Montreal 7-3, Pittsburgh dropped Houston 6-4 and Chicago split a doubleheader with Atlanta, winning 4-1 before losing 3-2. San Diego at New York and San Francisco at Philadelphia were both postponed by rain.

With the pitching staff coming through so well, the Red Sox have won six straight games and eight of the last nine. The streak has moved Boston into third place in the American League East, five games back of division-leading Baltimore.

The Sox nicked Jim Perry, 6-8, for a second inning run on Carlton Fisk's double, a wild pitch and Bob Burda's sacrifice fly. They got their other run in the eighth when Tommy Harper was hit by a pitch, stole second and rode home on Carl Yastrzemski's third hit of the game.

Kansas City jumped on Mickey Lolich for three first-inning runs and thumped the sagging Tigers, who have now lost five of their last six games to slip behind Baltimore.

The Royals bunched hits by Fred Patek, Amos Otis, Richie Scheinblum and John Mayberry plus an error by Paul Jata to take a quick lead. Then they kayoed Lolich, 13-6, with three more runs in the sixth. The Tiger ace allowed 10 hits and was disgusted with his performance.

"This was probably the poorest game I've pitched all year," he said. "Yeah, it was the worst. I was wild inside the strike zone."

Paul Spilttorff pitched a three-hitter for the KC victory.

The Yankees got a six-hitter from Steve Kline, 7-3, to beat Oakland and Ken Holtzman.

Leo wages warfare; Cubs win 4-1 Victory

By BRUCE LOWITT
Associated Press Sports Writer

"I didn't give a damn if he ever turned in the lineup," Atlanta pitcher Phil Niekro said of Chicago Manager Leo Durocher. "The Cubs had to come up there sooner or later."

Durocher, still steaming over a rainout Tuesday night that cost his Cubs a shot at a victory over the Braves, took out his wrath against everybody in Atlanta Stadium Wednesday with a bit of psychological warfare.

That "everybody" meant the Braves, the sports writers and the 10,324 fans who, up until the last moment, were kept from seeing the Cubs' lineup.

When Ron Scheuler of Atlanta got a look at it, he liked what he saw—for just seven innings. And when Niekro got his shot at it, he enjoyed the view for the entire nine.

Scheuler had a no-hitter going for 5 2-3 innings and a three-hit shutout for seven. But a four-run outburst in the eighth inning gave the Cubs a 4-1 victory in the opener of their twinight doubleheader.

Niekro spaced his hits more evenly, yielding six of them but holding on for a 3-2 victory over Chicago in the second game.

Elsewhere in the National League, Pittsburgh defeated Houston 6-4 and Los Angeles mauled Montreal 7-3. San Diego's game against the Mets in New York and San Francisco's at Philadelphia were rained out. Cincinnati and St. Louis were not scheduled.

Durocher had protested Tuesday's rainout decision but the National League upheld it.

"The powers that be in this league are ..." Durocher bellowed, unloading a choice expletive, "and you can quote me." Then he caught himself. "Oh, hey. You can't use that," he smiled. "Well, just say they're ..." and he shot forth another.

When Scheuler gave up a pair of singles to the Cubs at the start of the eighth inning of Wednesday's first game, Joe Hoerner took over on the mound. He struck out the first batter he faced, then hit the next one and walked pinch-hitter Jim Hickman to force over the tying run.

Ron Santo then grounded to Darrell Evans but the third baseman's throw home was wild and two runs scored. Carman Fanzone's run-scoring single capped the uprising that gave Ferguson Jenkins his 10th victory.

Mike Lum's solo home run in the fifth inning of the second game gave the Braves a 3-0 lead. Niekro yielded an unearned run in the eighth inning and Billy Williams' leadoff homer, his 16th, in the ninth.

Manny Sanguillen's two-run double and Bob Robertson's two-run homer in the fourth inning wiped out Houston'2 4-1 lead and Roberto Clemente added an insurance run in the fifth with a homer. Bob Johnson, replacing Pittsburgh starter Dock Ellis in the second inning, silenced Houston on just two hits the rest of the way.

Willie Davis' three-run double highlighted a four-run second inning against Montreal that enabled the Dodgers to snap a five-game tailspin.

Bobby makes apology; match set for Sunday

By STEPHENS BROENING
Associated Press Writer

REYKJAVIK, Iceland (AP) — Bobby Fischer made a full and penitent apology to Boris Spassky today, and organizers of the world chess championship match said the two would meet for their first game Sunday night.

The organizers said it had been agreed in principle to hold the drawing tonight to determine which player would have the white pieces and with them the first move.

The young American, in a letter delivered by hand this morning to the world chess champion from the Soviet Union, apologized for his "disrespectful behavior."

Fischer, whose delayed arrival doubled the prize money for both him and Spassky but also started an avalanche of confusion, asked the Russian to "accept my sincerest apology."

"I simply became carried away by my petty dispute over money with the Icelandic chess organizers," he wrote.

The written apology from the American challenger was one of the chief conditions posed by the Russians before Spassky would sit down at the chess board with Fischer.

Fischer told Spassky: "I have offended you and your country, the Soviet Union, where chess has a prestigious position."

The temperamental American also apologized to Dr. Max Euwe, president of the International Chess Federation, the Icelanders, "the thousands of fans around the world and especially to the millions of fans and the many friends I have in the United States."

However, Fischer brushed aside a demand from the Soviet Chess Federation that he forfeit the first match because of his tardy arrival. He said this "would place me at a tremendous handicap" and he didn't believe the "world's champion desires such an advantage in order to play me."

"I know you to be a sportsman and a gentleman, and I am looking forward to some exciting chess games with you," Fischer concluded.

Earlier Euwe had met other demands the Russians made on him and suggested that the start of the match be delayed further.

Euwe, president of the International Chess Federation, said he didn't penalize Fischer for his late arrival in Iceland because the American challenger is "living in another world." He said Spassky, the Russian world title holder, was "very upset" and that he would like to give him another week before the first game.

Euwe also admitted he had violated the rules in allowing two previous postponements in the start of the match. He promised strict rule enforcement in the future.

The 24-game series between Fischer and Spassky had been scheduled to start Sunday. Fischer stayed in New York, holding out for more money, and Euwe postponed the start of the match until Tuesday. Fischer arrived that day, but the Russians objected to his conduct and Euwe put the start off until today.

Fischer apologized Wednesday for delaying the start of the match, but the Russians demanded apologies in writing. Then they demanded that Fischer forfeit the first game.

The American's apology, read by a spokesman at a a news conference, said: "We are sorry the world championship was delayed. The problems causing the delays were not with world champion Spassky whom I respect as a man and admire as a player."

Later Yefim Geller, the Soviet grandmaster acting as Spassky's second, told another news conference the Russians wanted Euwe to condemn the American's conduct and accept blame himself for violating the federation's rules.

Euwe came forward and condemned Fischer, conceded he himself had broken the rules and added: "I apologize."

Asked if the Russians were satisfied, Geller said they wanted it all in writing. Euwe took a pen from his pocket and said, "I can write it now," and began drafting a letter.

Geller then said the Soviet Chess Federation had told Euwe he should award the first game to Spassky by forfeit, but Euwe said he did not consider the request official.

Then Euwe put forward his idea of another postponement.

Fischer's letter was delivered by hand to the Soviet world champion this morning.

Fischer, whose delayed arrival doubled the prize money for both him and Spassky but also started an avalanche of confusion, asked the Russian to "accept my sincerest apology."

"I simply became carried away by my petty dispute over money with the Icelandic chess organizers," he wrote.

The written apology from the American challenger was one of the chief conditions posed by the Russians before Spassky would sit down at the chess board with Fischer.

Schaefer 500 is scheduled

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — The Schaefer 500-mile championship auto race will be run July 29, one day before the Pennsylvania 500 late model stock car race at Pocono International Raceway.

The championship race, postponed from July 2 in the wake of the state's flooding, got the green light Wednesday as a settlement was reached between the U.S. Auto Club and officials of the Pocono track.

Pennsylvania Gov. Milton J. Shapp had declared portions of the state a disaster area, and rain washed out seven of the 10 days of practice allotted at the raceway at Long Pond, Pa., about 20 miles southeast of flood-ravaged Wilkes-Barre.

Shapp asked that the race be postponed to avoid a strain on facilities.

USAC drivers and officials said they alone had the authority to change the date and threatened to boycott the track.

Twins fire Rigney

MINNEAPOLIS-ST. PAUL, (AP) — The Minnesota Twins fired Bill Rigney as manager today and named coach Frank Quilici as his replacement.

Rigney was named manager of the Twins in 1970, replacing Billy Martin after he had led Minnesota to a divisional championship in 1969.

Quilici, 33, retired as an active player in 1970 and joined the Twins as coach for the 1971 season. He was a fifth coach on the squad this year.

Rigney, 54, had managed the New York Giants and San Francisco Giants, and the California Angels before moving to Minnesota in 1970.

THEY EAT TOO MUCH

BONN, Germany (AP) — One of every four West Germans believes he is eating improperly, according to a survey by the Bonn Health Ministry.

Twenty-four per cent of those queried thought they were not getting full nutritional benefit from their meals because they were eating too much, too quickly and at the wrong times. Many admitted their diets included too much bread and potatoes.

WORLD ALMANAC FACTS

Most of the world's major astronomical observatories are in the northern hemisphere with few large telescopes in the southern hemisphere. The World Almanac notes, however, that giant telescopes are being completed in Chile and Australia which will bring the central region of the Milky Way and other areas under sharper view.

CARNIVAL — By DICK TURNER

"It's been a fine car for Edith. I just can't believe she's gotten over 10,000 miles on the same set of fenders!"

QUICK QUIZ

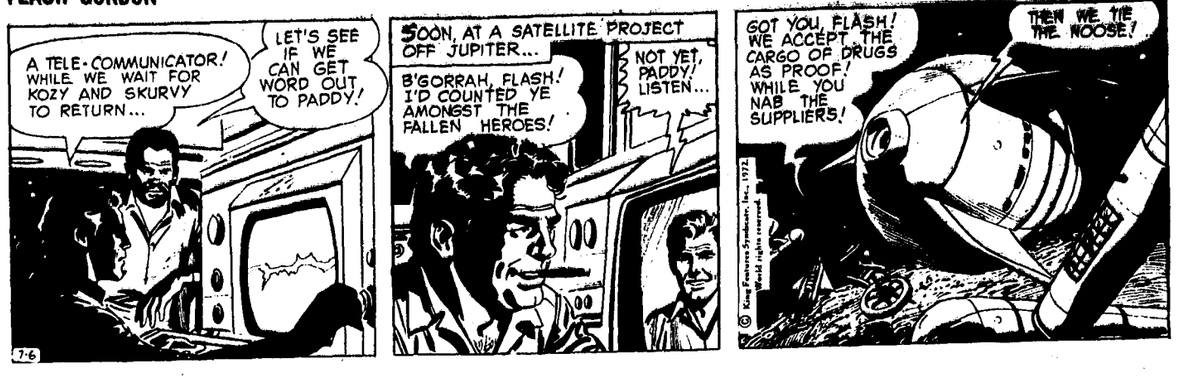

Q—Do trees drink rainwater that falls on their leaves?

A—No. Leaves are waterproof; trees get their water from the ground.

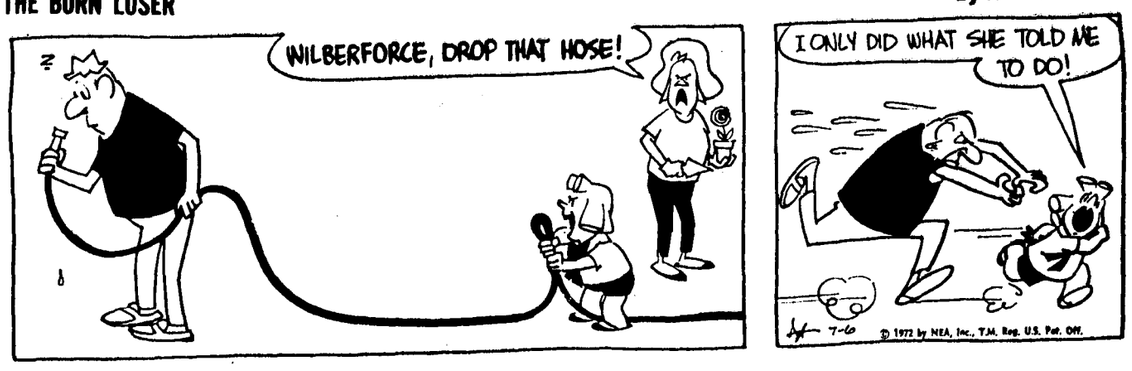

Q—How many members of President Franklin Roosevelt's cabinet served throughout his entire 12-year term?

A—Two—Harold Ickes, secretary of the Interior, and Frances Perkins, secretary of Labor.

Ryun is favored in Olympic trials

By DAN BERGER
Associated Press Sports Writer

EUGENE, Ore. (AP) — The Saga of Jim Ryun may reach "The End," or it may provide America with another Cinderella story today.

The world record holder in the 1,500-meter run takes on six other metric milers this evening in a quarter-final heat at the U.S. Men's Olympic Trials.

Ryun recently told friends he would quit track for good if he did not qualify for the U.S. team in the 1,500. He previously ran fourth in the 800 here, failing to make the team despite an excellent time of 1:45.2.

Four men in each heat of the 1,500 this evening will qualify for Friday's semifinals. Ryun is the only contestant in the third heat who has cracked 3:40 this season and is heavily favored to advance.

Also this evening, Rod Milburn is hoping to break the world record in the 110-meter high hurdles.

"That record will go the first time I step on that track," said Milburn. "That's the fastest track in the world and I want to set the record as soon as possible and get it out of the way."

The world mark of 13.2 seconds, set by Willie Davenport, has never officially been broken, although Milburn has run 13.0 seconds for 120 yards—virtually the same distance.

Competitors in the 400-meter event, the first round of which begins this evening, have said the world record is in jeopardy.

"This race will be more competitive than the finals at Munich," said Wayne Collett, "because here four guys will be fighting for three spots on the team."

Collett includes himself with John Smith, Lee Evans and Vince Matthews, the same foursome experts say will be in the finals.

Six heats containing four men each will run this evening. Three men from each heat qualify for Friday's quarter-finals.

"I think it will take 43.7 to win and 44.0 just to make the team," said Jim Bush, who coached Collett and Smith at UCLA. The world record was set at the Mexico City olympics by Evans at 43.8.

Only one other running event is scheduled, the 5,000-meter run heats.

Brewers shut out Aces 1-0

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

—It was a good night to be in the Texas League West Division—all the teams in the West beat all the teams in the East.

Dennis Yard of San Antonio showed Wednesday night's best pitching as he retired 27 batters in a row to give the Brewers a 1-0 shutout over the Alexandria Aces at San Antonio. Yard gave up his only hit to the first batter of the game, Duane Larsen. With the pressure for a no-hitter off, he then came as close as you can come to getting one, setting the remaining Aces up and knocking them down in order. He also picked up ten strike-outs in the victory.

In other league play, Midland shut out Arkansas 5-0; Amarillo beat Shreveport 6-4; and El Paso downed Memphis 6-3.

Midland's Paul Zahn thew a nine-hit shutout against Arkansas at Midland. The Giants scored three of their five runs in the eighth inning when Pete LaCock, son of television emcee Peter Marshall, scored two runs with a triple and came home himself on a single.

A two-run homer from Bob Frazier in the fifth inning gave Amarillo the lead it needed to stay ahead of Shreveport. The Giants had a 6-1 lead in the fifth, but Shreveport bounced back for three more runs—not enough to win, though.

Jerry Royster and Terry McDermott scored one-run and two-run homers, respectively, to lead El Paso to a 6-3 victory over Memphis out in West Texas.

By Oswald & James Jacoby

The great Houdini is remembered for his many tricks of magic but few people know that he also was quite a magician at the bridge table. Here we see him sit East and make an easy three-spade contract vanish into thin air.

It wasn't really hard for the master of illusion.

South won the first trick with the ace of clubs and led a heart to dummy's jack. Houdini dropped the four-spot and South went about the business of taking a losing spade finesse.

West took his king and led a second club. Houdini was on lead. He cashed his ace of hearts and led a third club. West ruffed with his eight of trumps and led a third heart.

It didn't matter that South had discarded dummy's last heart on that third club lead. Houdini's 10 of trumps was higher than dummy's six.

How many tricks had vanished into thin air? Just two!

If South had simply played ace and another trump when he was in with the ace of clubs the defense would never get to ruff anything, anywhere.

Why didn't South play safe at his conservative contract? Don't ask us. Even Houdini couldn't find a reason.

Sen. Edmund Muskie, born March 28, 1914, is an Aries. Arians are fighters who do not accept defeat. They are leaders of a highly independent nature, often impulsive, with a reluctance to counsel with their followers. When Jupiter was in favorable aspect to Muskie's Sun and Moon, his road appeared clear and easy. Since Jupiter shifted signs, he must now fight for whatever he attains. On the other hand, Saturn, the planet of restrictions that rewards only for diligence and effort, favors his horoscope.

NEW YORK (UPI) — The first international Festival of Women's Films included "Three Lives"—filmed by the Women's Liberation Cinema Company and produced by Kate Millett, author of "Sexual Politics."

The festival featured films from the United States, Canada and Europe—all by female filmmakers. They were grouped thematically under such headings as: The Feminine Mystique, Women in Arabia and Africa, Visual Anthropology, Social Protest, and Eroticism and Exploitation. A special program for children was titled "Animals and Animation."
